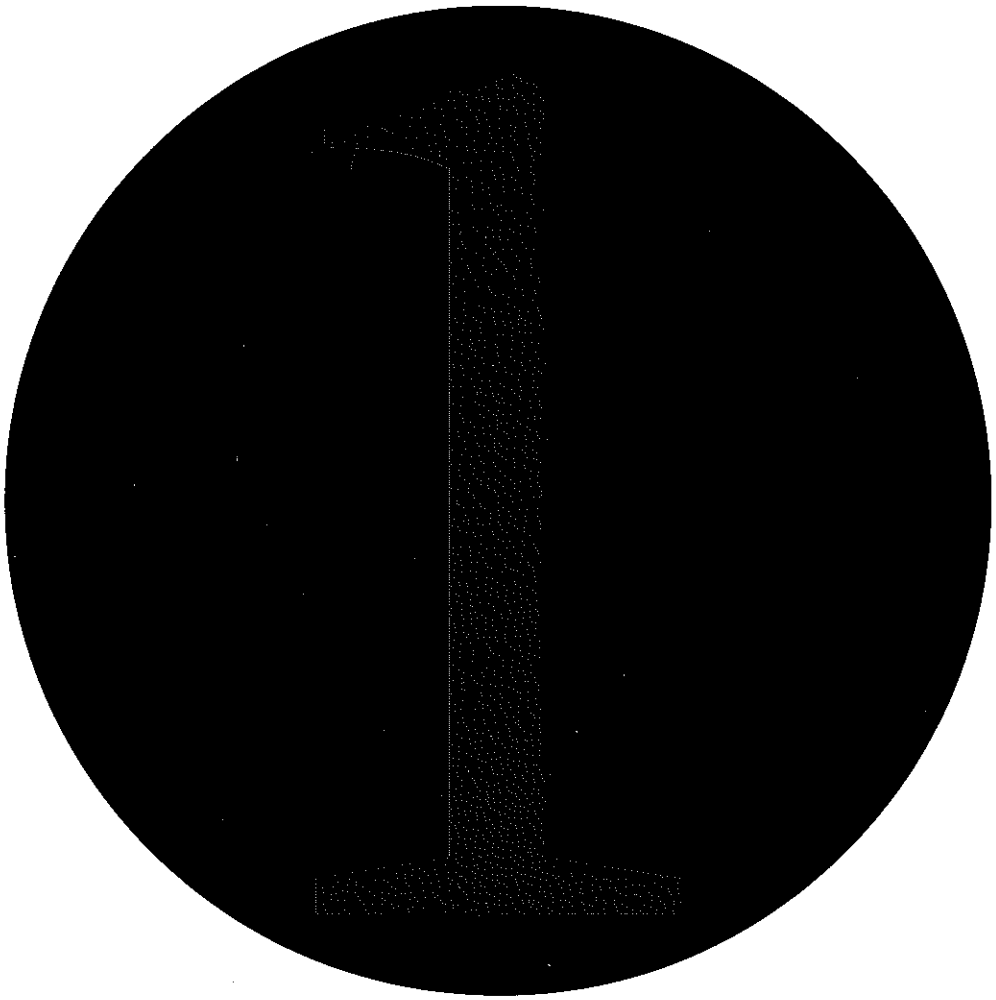
EDUCATIONAL THEORY

Volume 64 | Number 1 | 2014



Naoko Saito
Kyoto University
William Schubert
ersity of Illinois at Chicago
Harvey Siegel
University of Miami
Paul Smeyers
olieke Universiteit Leuven
Steven Tozer
ersity of Illinois at Chicago

For the
John Dewey Society
Larry Hickman

Walter Okshevsky
Memorial University
Lynda Stone
The University of
th Carolina at Chapel Hill
Daniel Tröhler
iversity of Luxembourg
Bryan Warnick
e Ohio State University

Term Expires in 2018
Hanan Alexander
University of Haifa
Josh Corngold
University of Tulsa
Sheron Fraser-Burgess
Ball State University
Michael Grenfell
University of Stirling
Kathy Hytten
versity of North Carolina
at Greensboro
Liz Jackson
University of Hong Kong
Mark Jonas
Wheaton College
Alis Oancea
University of Oxford
Richard Quantz
Miami University
Amy Shuffelton
yola University Chicago

ditorial Assistant
Roman Friedman

Carls

by the University of Illinois.
e (217) 333-3003, FAX (217)
s/educational-theory>.

EDUCATIONAL THEORY

Founded by the John Dewey Society and the Philosophy of Education Society

CONTENTS

1
The Human and Educational Significance of Honesty as an Epistemic and Moral Virtue
David Carr

15
The Dialectical Relationship Between Place and Space in Education: How the Internet Is Changing Our Perceptions of Teaching and Learning
Michael Glassman and Jonathan Burbidge

33
Transitional Justice and the Task of Inclusion: A Habermasian Perspective on the Justification of Aboriginal Educational Rights
Christopher Martin

55
The Difference Differentiation Makes: Extending Eisner's Account
Jane Blanken-Webb

75
Richard Rorty's Conception of Philosophy of Education Revisited
Khosrow Bagheri Noaparast

INSTITUT FÜR
ERZIEHUNGSWISSENSCHAFT
Bibliothek Freiestrasse
Freiestrasse 36 / 8032 Zürich

© 2014 Board of Trustees | University of Illinois